Election/Restrictions

1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
 - I. Claims 1-41, 72-91, 149, and 153-157, drawn to a coated article, classified in class 428, subclass 304.4+.
 - II. Claims 42-71 and 92-134, drawn to a method of making a coated article, classified in class 521, subclass 50+.
 - III. Claims 135-148 and 150-152, drawn to various methods of using a coated article, classified in class 436, subclass various.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

2. Inventions of Group II and Group I are related as process of making and product made. The inventions are distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) that the process as claimed can be used to make other and materially different product or (2) that the product as claimed can be made by another and materially different process (MPEP § 806.05(f)). In the instant case, coated article can be made by another and materially different process such as by forming the porous coating from a material other than a metal oxide and by attaching the two or more compounds to all of the porous coating, rather than to discrete regions of the coating.
3. Inventions Groups I and III are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case, the coated article can be used in a variety of materially different processes of using such as using the coated article to 1) identify at least one compound that specifically binds to a receptor, 2) to isolate a target receptor, 3) to modify a receptor and 4) to hybridize an antisense molecule to target nucleic acid molecules.

4. Inventions of Groups III and II are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the combination does not specifically require a porous coating made of a metal oxide. The subcombination has separate utility such as a process for making a ceramic filter membrane.

5. Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

6. This application contains claims directed to the following patentably distinct species of the claimed invention:

If Applicant selects Group I, the distinct species are 1) a coated article having a continuous porous coating wherein the porous coating has two or more different compounds attached thereto, 2) a coated article having at least two discrete regions with continuous porous coatings wherein each porous coating has at least one compound attached thereto, 3) a coated article wherein the porosity of the coating ranges from 0.15 to 0.99, and 4) a coated article comprising a substrate having at least five separate distinct porous coatings per square centimeter.

If Applicant elects Group II, the distinct species are 1) a method for making a coated article with two or more compounds attached thereto, and 2) a method of making a coated article comprising a substrate and at least two separate porous coatings

If Applicant elects Group III, the distinct species are 1) a method for identifying at least one compound that specifically binds a receptor, 2) a method for isolating a target receptor, 3) a method for modifying a receptor, and 4) a method for hybridizing an antisense molecule to a target nucleic acid molecule.

7. Applicant is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 to elect a single disclosed species for prosecution on the merits to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. Currently, there are no generic claims for Group I, II or III.

8. Applicant is advised that a reply to this requirement must include an identification of the species that is elected consonant with this requirement, and a listing of all claims readable thereon, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered nonresponsive unless accompanied by an election.

Art Unit: 1771

9. Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which are written in dependent form or otherwise include all the limitations of an allowed generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP § 809.02(a).

10. Should applicant traverse on the ground that the species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the inventions unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) of the other invention.

11. Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
